sed With Hughes's Exposure of "Wilson Folly."

Col. Roosevelt, who sat in a front box on interested and enthusiastic listener throughout Mr. Hughes's speech, spoke his enthusiastic approval to those about him many times. After the speech find been delivered Col. Roosevelt made the following formal statement:

following formal statement:
"It is an admirable speech and I wish to call attention to the following points:
"I am particularly pleased with Mr. Hughes's exposure of the folly and worse than folly of Mr. Wilson's Mexolicy and of the way in which this has brought humiliation to the States and disaster to Mexico the automobile, the crowd gave one last the straightforward manner in which Mr. Hughes has shown the ridicule with which Mr. Wilson has covered this Nation by the manner in which he has allowed foreign Powers to gain the impression that although he 'used the shouts of 'Teddy.' but he was an absorbed listener to Mr. Hughes's speech. Many times he nodded his head emphatically as Mr. Hughes made a good point, and a good many times he applicated. "That's right!" "Fine" Mrs. strength and resolution behind the words Strong Deeds After Strong Words. "As Mr. Hughes points out, there is no doubt that if Mr. Wilson's conduct and action had been such as to make the foreign nations believe he meant precisely that he said in his 'strict accountability' note there would have been no destruction of American lives by the sinking of the Lusitania. When Mr. Hughes uses strong words his record shows that they have always been backed by strong deeds, and therefore in the enormous majority of cases the use of strong words made it unnecessary ever to have re-course to strong deeds. "Again. Mr. Hughes speaks in characteristically straightforward fashion about the outrages committed on our muni-tions plants, and all men, whether citi-zens of foreign nations or nominal citi-

been called auspicious even for the most summery of summer farces, but in spite of that New York's theatrical season of 1916-17 was officially brought into existence last night at the Cort Theatre when Arthur Hammerstein presented a farce-comedy by Edward Clark called "Coat Tales." That was the beginning of what is promised as the busiest theatre season in a number of years and an audience which braved the sweltaring

Fortunately for them, however, the coats wanderings were kept track of, for "Coat Tales" proved last night to be an extremely clever, well written farce not only abounding in hearty, laughable stuations, but wholesome and clean, which cannot be said of all farces of the same character. It should prove a popular hot weather play. Although the spectacle of three or four women running about in heavy Russian sable furs in overheated city apartments or of indigent young men wheezing into not overly well warmed pawn shops blowing on their hands, derives not a little of the fun of the piece, its humor comes from
